

Vintage Collectables, Crafts, and Appraisal Faire
at the
Neely Mansion in Auburn WA
Saturday / August 6, 2016 / 10 am – 4 pm / $5 entry fee

Kathleen Victor, ISA CAPP

Donald Jensen, ISA CAPP

Ever wonder what your antiques and family heirlooms are really worth? Wonder no longer! You can easily learn by bringing your items and inquiries on Saturday, August 6th to the Neely Mansion. From 11 am – 3 pm you will have access to professional appraisers, Kathleen Victor and Donald Jensen. Both appraisers specialize in personal property that includes all residential contents, antiques, and collectables. No reservations are required; either pay cash at the door or pre-pay via www.neelymansion.org with your credit card.

Although you may bring as many items as you wish, during peak periods a limit of two items per person will be imposed. However, you can always get in line again later! Charge for evaluations will be $10 per item. Proceeds will benefit the Neely Mansion's ongoing maintenance and operations.

You may recognize both Kathleen and Donald as routinely appearing in many evaluation events throughout the Puget Sound. They have been participating professional appraisers in the evaluation booth for the large Palmer-Wirf Antique Shows in Tacoma and Portland for the past ten years and have appeared at the annual Bainbridge Chamber of Commerce Home Show for the past three years. Kathleen was also co-promoter of the antique show held in the past at the Sons of Norway Hall in Poulsbo.

As a certified appraiser, Kathleen Victor operates Victor Appraisal Services in Redmond, Washington. She is designated with full certification by the International Society of Appraisers (ISA) and has received her credentials through education of appraisal theory and methodology with the University of Maryland. Kathleen's appraisal related education is backed by 35 years in retailing, wholesaling and collecting antiques and decorative art. Furthering her profession, Kathleen has received degrees for appraising in period and costume jewelry, fine art, Expert Witness for Appraisers, and antiques, and residential contents. She is an instructor of antiques at Bellevue Community College and is a public speaker on antique related subjects in the Puget Sound. Kathleen (some know her as "Kitty") says her life's profession was born of the fact that she is a passionate collector at heart. Also, that her hunger to discover antiques and learn their history, has been a key element in the enjoyment of her successes as a professional appraiser, instructor, and speaker.

Don Jensen is a Certified Appraiser of Personal Property and a member of the International Society of Appraisers (ISA). Don has been appraising personal property for the past twelve years to include seven seasons at on-site locations for the Antiques Roadshow. Don successfully completed all personal property appraisal courses offered by the ISA, and has completed antique and appraisal related courses at Winterthur Museum, University of Massachusetts, Lawrence University, Corning Glass Center and the Rockwell Museum. Additionally, he has attended an array of related seminars and short courses to further his appraising career. A lifetime collector himself, Don specializes in the areas of glass, porcelain and pottery, silver, furniture, and fine art. He is a retired Navy Captain and Naval Aviator and holds a Master of Science degree in International Relations from George Washington University.
